Wild Island indeed, gregariously aromatic, a foraged set of scents come from ramps, fiddleheads and first growth herbs. A wild citrus too, from plants that mimic lemon, grassy ones and others that ooze a milky substance. Lean and oxidative as per what auxerrois is want to be, but tight and different as well. Not very fleshy at all but neither grape nor place draw such expectation. Drink 2020-2022. Tasted November 2020.
